Q. So let's break that out. Is it deputy commissioner of operation, is that how many deputy commissioners are there? A. Well, at the time, there was there's usually four. Four to seven, they handle different parts of running the department. You have a Deputy Commissioner of Patrol, Patrol and Operations, which that was Deputy Commissioner Sullivan's title. You have Deputy Commissioner of Organizational Services. There's, like, different titles. So PAL would have fallen under the Deputy Commissioner of Organizational Services, which was DC Patterson. But DC Sullivan volunteered to take over PAL. And I received a call from Deputy Commissioner

But he did not have the authority to do that, correct? A. Right. Which is why he was going through all these means to intimidate me into having him transferred into the unit. Q. Because the decision to do that would go through you, correct? A. The decision to have him transferred in, no. I could only request based on who is on that list. And he wasn't on the list because he didn't qualify. Q. So there's a protocol within the police department that governs how officers come in and out of PAL? A. Yes. It's, I believe, Directive 12. Now, there is what we call parachuting, which is someone in the authority of commissioner can transfer someone in.	2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10 11 12 13 14 15 16 17 18 19 20 21 22	E. CINTRON Sullivan, correct? So what I want to back up and ask so you also said that the the people that excluded you, they didn't respect your rank; is that correct? A. The people when you say "people," are you talking about Bernie Prazenica? Q. Well, you said that when I was talking about being excluded from meetings, you said they didn't respect your rank and they didn't respect your advocacy for the kids. And I'm trying to find out who is the "they" that A. Ted Qualli, Ron Rabena and Bernie Prazenica. Q. And so A. They were upset because I advocated for the children and reported different things like safety at Wissinoming PAL. Because that was not the only center that we had issues with. Q. So I need to reframe this question. I understand what you're saying about the PAL centers. What I'm asking you about is what are the things the Bernie Prazenica did to you where you felt he did them because of your gender or national origin. A. I feel that because I was a Latina commander in the unit, by being excluded is enough. Being excluded from the decision-making meetings is enough, because he literally was taking my authority away from me to be able to function properly at my job, to be able to properly do what I needed to do to service the communities I served. And whenever I would bring up issues of inequality, they did nothing about it. They continued with their practices. They continued doing the things that they were doing that was very uneven.
